FARM ADVISORY GROUP REVISES LOCAL PROGRAM

Ways To Meet Price
Squeeze On Farms
Studied In County

Twelve members of the Morgan County Extension Advisory Committee completed a revision of the long-time Morgan county extension program at a meeting held in the courthouse Nov. 10.

Thirty-one members had met October 1 at which time they discussed the drought situation and the economic squeeze in which farmers are now caught. At that time made a partial listing of long-time needs to help farmers meet these problems.

At Tuesday's meeting the group heard a further discussion of the drought situation by County Agent Charlie Dixon. He showed a collection of information in the form of circulars, leaflets and mimeographed sheets which the Extension Service had compiled to help farmers meet the drought problem. He stated that copies of the material would be distributed to members of the committee and would be available to all farm families at his office.

C. S. Jackson, chairman, presided at the meeting. Three small discussion groups were led by Mrs. Harold Rose, Mrs. Jasper Jones and Mrs. Lee Skaggs. Reports for the groups were by Mrs. Jones, Mr. Jones and Mrs. John Rose. Those discussion groups worked out a supplementary list of needs to that which was prepared October 1. After these reports, the groups then worked out a list of suggested ideas for a number of meetings to be held in the various communities of the county, beginning January 15. These meetings will be designed to help the farm people recognize their needs, list them, and lay some plans for their community to develop improved farming and homemaking programs to increase incomes and improve their family living even in the face of economic crisis.

The needs which the group outlined are given below:

1. Expand the Extension Program to more effectively reach all the people of the county.

A. Build strong community programs with the farmers taking the lead and in complete charge.

B. Organize more 4-H clubs with more members. Parents should give their children more encouragement and full ownership of their projects.

C. Organize more homemakers clubs with more members.

II. Keep more of our most capable young people on the farms by—

A. Encouraging them in 4-H, F.F.A. and P.H.A. work and giving them greater opportunity to own property and earn money for themselves.

B. Securing more conveniences for the home.

C. Using machinery and equipment to save labor and make the work easier.

D. Helping young people plan and carry out recreational programs.

III. Farmers should organize closely through—

A. General farm organizations (Continued on page 8)

FACTS ABOUT THE F185 JET

Although the Courier did not divulge the speed range of the F-86 Sabre jet fighters that crashed in Morgan county Oct. 27 because of the requirement to get prior Air Force security permission, it can now be reported that the F-86 has a reported speed capability of 650 miles an hour.

The F-86's speed is more than 10 miles a minute, which accounts for the fact a pilot has to catapult himself out of the plane, seat and all, with a special mechanism. The strongest of men could not force himself out of a cockpit at such speed.

The F-86 is the fighter the United States used in Korea against the Red MIG-15 with such devastating effect. The final tally in the long Korean duel between the two types of planes, announced last week, was 802 MIG's shot down to 58 F-86's.

But the U. S. now has an even deadlier fighter—the F-96. It's the F-100 Super Sabre, and was given official Air Force tests at Edwards Air Force Base in California Oct. 29, two days after the F-86 crashed here. Newsweek reports it averaged 754.98 miles an hour on the test course and on a downward pass hit 767 m.p.h. Newsweek further reports that shock waves generated at the test plane crashed the sonic barrier, shattered heavy wooden beams and plate glass windows (Continued on Page Four)

2 Kentuckians Take Opposite Views On Benson's Reorganization of SCS

Cooper For Benson
Plan; Ward Avers
Program A Mistake

Two Kentucky office holders spoke out this week to take opposing views on Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's reorganization of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, especially in view of the fact that there appear to be some good grounds for "feeling," the state commissioner continued.

"The program of the Soil Conservation Service was hampered by the fact that the reorganization of the agency and the Extension Service," Ward declared. "As a member of the state legislature in 1940, I know the opposition of some of those in Extension to the creation of Soil Conservation districts and the enactment of the law authorizing them. Fortunately, the feud has died down through the years. When Dr. Frank Welch came to Kentucky as dean of the College of Agriculture of Ky. U. he began an effective campaign to bridge the differences between the Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service. He has made fine progress in that direction. It would be a shame to let the difference of Secretary Benson to the promotion of this harmony destroy that progress."

Cooper, in an interview, said no function of the S.C.S. was taken away and that the only primary change was the abolition of seven regional offices which employed between 900 and 1,000. The Somerset Republican said that of the employees in regional offices, "only approximately 300 are soil conservation experts. Most of those who are losing their jobs are clerks, typists, receptionists and desk administrators."

Cooper predicted that the new program will mean more direct contact between the national authority and the states and that it will put more authority in the states and give them more help. Ward, who is chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee, said Benson rushed his reorganization into effect in the face of widespread suspicions that he is "seeking to destroy the agency in favor of the Extension Service."

"He should have made more extensive efforts to disprove the contentions that he favors the Extension Service over Soil Conservation, especially in view of the fact that there appear to be some good grounds for 'feeling,'" the state commissioner continued.

ACCIDENT KILLS D. O. CARPENTER AT DRILLING RIG

D. O. (Denny) Carpenter, 55, of Woodbend, was killed instantly Monday morning by accidental electrocution while engaged in dismantling a water well drilling rig at the home of T. H. Easterling on Lacy Creek near Florio.

While lowering the mast of the rig it came in contact with a high tension REA electric line carrying 7200 volts and the charge was conducted to Mr. Carpenter who was operating a wrench that lowered the boom. He was held to the lever for an instant and then fell to the ground and died almost instantly.

His helper, Lake McNeely, was on the truck that moves the rig and was not injured. Though McNeely jumped to the ground as soon as he heard Mr. Carpenter cry out, the REA breaker had automatically cut off the current by that time, else he too may have been electrocuted when his feet made contact with the ground.

Carpenter had completed digging the well and was preparing to move the rig when the accident happened. Stanley Hanev was standing near Mr. Carpenter talking to him about having a well drilled at his home.

Mr. Carpenter was a well known farmer of Woodbend and a former teacher. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ollie Francis Carpenter, Woodbend; and two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Anderson and Mrs. Wilmer Cecil of West Liberty; four sons, Maj. Clifton C. Carpenter of Washington, D.C.; Billy and James Carpenter in service in California, and D. O., Jr., at home. Also surviving are three brothers, H. W. of Winchester, F. of Middletown, and Dell of Zag, and two sisters, Mrs. Cora Pannin of West Liberty and Mrs. Steve Kash of Omer.

He was born at Zag, a son of J. L. and Martha Cottle Carpenter.

Funeral was conducted Thursday morning at Woodbend and interment was made there under direction of the Potter Funeral Home.

STATE FARMERS DISREGARD OLD PARENT POLICY

Kline Rebuffed By
Kentucky Farmers
At Annual Meeting

The Kentucky Farm Bureau declined to follow the leadership of American Farm Bureau President Allen Kline in favoring a flexible farm price program and voted instead for continuance of the 1949 Agricultural Act guaranteeing support of basic farm crops at not less than 90% of parity.

The resolutions favoring fixed price supports instead of flexible (floor) price supports were voted at the closing session of the Kentucky Farm Bureau annual meeting in Louisville Wednesday. The largest number of delegates ever to attend a state Farm Bureau meeting were present for the annual session.

The delegates struck out by a 358-to-348-vote, paragraph proposed by the resolutions committee that would have placed the Kentucky Farm Bureau on record as favoring a proposal by the U. S. Department of Agriculture that farmers must comply with acreage control programs on all crops they plant to be eligible for price supports on any crop.

Potato growers had objected to such a provision when it was announced last month by Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Kentucky members of Congress had protested the restriction along with representatives of wheat growing areas.

The idea was abandoned by Benson for 1954 crops. However, he said he plans to call for it again next year, to apply to 1955 production.

In addition to favoring a 90% fixed price support for the six basic crops, the Kentucky Farm Bureau also went on record as favoring continuance and strengthening indirect price supports on other than basic crops when prices of these crops fall below 90% of parity and when such action is desired by producers.

This program, in effect, would place 90% fixed price supports under the six basic crops and under all other farm crops if desired by producers of these crops.

The delegates also voted to shelve a proposed amendment to the State Farm Bureau's constitution that would place the direction of farm bureau policies in the hands of both the president and executive secretary instead of under the president solely.

The executive secretary, J. E. Stanford, argued for the amendment, saying there was "uncertainty, misunderstanding and confusion" in the state office. He said members of his staff had been told by executives of the Farm Bureau to go to Washington and do their things without his knowledge.

Some members said the debate stemmed from dissatisfaction in some counties with Stanford's conduct of organization affairs.

Some of these critics have maintained that there has been too much dominance of the Farm Bureau by national and state offices.

A number of criticisms of Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, have been voiced privately and in county meetings.

And there have been charges that the A.F.B.F. has funneled through the state office requests to county Farm Bureau presidents for "spontaneous" telegrams and letters in support or opposition to policy matters in agriculture.

The State Bureau's present constitution says that the president shall direct the work of the executive secretary, and this was allowed to stand, at least for the present, thus denying Stanford a voice in direction of the bureau's actions.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, parent organization of the State bureaus, long has favored flexible price supports under the presidency of Kline. Under a flexible price support program, farm prices would be allowed to fluctuate between 75 and 90 percent of parity, the support price being allowed to drop as production went up and to be increased as production declined.

That is the farm price program Secretary Benson originally proposed when he took office.

Support of fixed price supports at 90% of parity reflects opposition to the policies of the American Farm Bureau Federation expressed by its president, Allen B. Kline, and the administration of the Department of Agriculture under the Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Hunting Prospects Seem Good, View

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The hopes of Kentucky hunters were boosted today following an announcement by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, that rabbit and quail are in good supply in the state.

The season on both opens November 20 and extends through January 18. The daily limit on rabbits has been set at 8 and quail 10.

Beginning on the same day, hunters may also take ruffed or native grouse, raccoon, opossum, mink, skunk, red fox, muskrat, woodcock and jacksnipe.

Game Wardens To Use Road Blocks This Year

Road blocks to intercept hunters suspected of carrying more than their limit of game will be established again this year in various sections of the state during the hunting season. These blocks will be manned by conservation officers and State Police. They are a protection for the hunter who does not violate the law, from the game hogs who take excessive amounts.

IN THE BOAT is Elijah Craft with a pole. In front near him is S. H. Craft, an uncle, helping to push the boat. In center is Mrs. Alice Craft and two children, Elmer and Mae. In the top left background is the cabin home of Charley Lovely. Corn shocks and snow can be seen on the ground as the time was late December of 1919. At top right is the home of Leck Baker and nearby stood the school which Mr. Craft attended. The boat is being pushed down Quicksand. Mr. Craft had walked down the bank to examine the sand bars and look out for route for the boat.

Craft Family Move To Morgan In Flat Boat And Railroad Boxcar

Among the early pioneers in Eastern Kentucky were five Craft brothers who came from Virginia in the early days. They were Allen and Dan, who settled in Menifee county; Elijah settled at Millston in Letcher county; Bill at Magoffin county; Preston Craft, the grandfather of Floyd Craft of West Liberty, settled on Quicksand in Breathitt county.

Floyd Craft's mother was Martha Risner Craft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Risner who lived at the mouth of Huntington Creek. His grandmother was Sallie Higgins, daughter of Dave Higgins of Quicksand. Floyd has no brothers or sisters.

Elijah Craft, son of Preston Craft, was the father of Floyd. Floyd was born on the old place where his grandfather settled. He married Miss Alice Patton, the daughter of Sam Patton who lived a half mile from Floyd's home. Mr. Patton later bought a farm and moved to it near Index and later moved to and lived in West Liberty. Mrs. Craft says she went to school with Floyd who taught school for seven years. She says she took her knitting to school, and that Floyd always seemed to want to talk to her. They were married July 19, 1900 and celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary last July.

After they married they lived on Quicksand at Gauge, where Mr. Craft taught school, farmed and engaged in the merchandise business for ten years. Mr. Craft had a flatboat on Quicksand creek to haul the merchandise from Jackson to his store a distance of 20 miles. The boat was made from a poplar tree which was 85 feet long and 9 feet wide and would carry a cargo of from 15,000 to 20,000 pounds and required 9 men and took two days to make the round trip. A fine state highway now runs along Quicksand from Jackson and the trip can be made in half an hour.

In 1919 he purchased the Sam Patton farm at Index in Morgan county and moved to it. He loaded his family and all his belongings in the flatboat and floated down to the mouth of Quicksand. There he chartered a box car from the C & O Railroad and transferred his household goods and family and came to Index on the car. He lived there for 7 years and then moved to West Liberty. He was county road engineer for eight years and has been surveyor for the Federal Land Bank for 35 years, also soil technician for the county the last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Craft have four sons and five daughters: Mrs. Mary Bays and Mrs. Mae Smith of Hazard; Mrs. Martha Baker of Neor; Mrs. Alma Craft, F. Knox, Ky.; Mrs. Ruth Dunn of Dayton, O.; Hagar Craft of Lexington; S. E. Craft, Mt. Sterling; Charles Craft, San Antonio, Texas, and Elmer Craft of West Liberty.

Mr. Craft says a lot of funny things happened while he sold goods in Breathitt. Kenny Howard who lived nearby, wanted to buy some oats for his horse and Floyd told him he did not have any, but Kenny who had been looking around thought he saw some in a large barrel and argued with Floyd that he had oats. Floyd finally agreed to sell him a bushel and measured them out to him in a sack. Kenny took them home with him and discovered that they were not oats when his uncle, Dud Howard, picked them up and said, "This bushel of oats won't weigh five pounds."

On examination they proved to be rice husks which had been used as packing around a barrel of baking powder.

Mrs. Craft says that Floyd was a good teacher, but was always trying to keep her in at recess for some reason in order to get to talk to her.

Farming Losses May Affect Income Tax

Farmers who had a net loss this year may get a refund from the federal income tax paid last year. If their 1952 income tax wasn't enough to cover their loss this year, they may take the remainder out of next year's tax. So says a statement from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

"Net operating losses can be carried both backward and forward, if not offset by income from other sources," says the college's statement. "If a farmer shows a net loss on his return for the current year (because of unprofitable farming operations), he can use this business loss to offset income in other years."

If he paid a federal income tax in 1952, he can claim a refund based on relieving the tax for that year, taking into account the 1953 loss. If the 1953 loss is greater than the 1952 tax paid, then the remainder of the loss would be applied in figuring the income tax for 1954 and later years, up to five years. A 1953 operating loss should be used first to claim a refund of taxes paid on the 1952 income.

Special or unusual questions regarding deductions of items of expense, and reporting of income, and requests for more detailed information on Federal Income Tax rules should be referred to local representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

TURKEY SHOTS LEGAL

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 16—"Turkey shoots" are not in violation of the Kentucky gambling and lottery laws. Instead they may be classified as games of skill.

That was the opinion of Assistant Attorney General H. D. Reed, Jr., given to the La Center Chief of Police.

"Inasmuch as the prizes are not distributed by chance but, rather, are distributed on the skill employed by the participants in the shoot, it does not constitute a lottery and is not gambling under Kentucky statutes."

less, it may be possible—legally—for a hunter to go out each fall and bag himself a deer as was done in the days before Kentucky lost its eminence as a game country.

THE HARRY DEXTER WHITE CASE

There is a background to the Harry Dexter White case that has escaped the headlines and television cameras now treating the nation to the ugliest kind of political battle.

One must remember that Russia was our ally in a fight to the death against Nazism from 1941 to 1946. Our policy in those years was to help sustain Russia as a fighting ally of our armies in Europe where Nazism had conquered most of the continent, while we held Japanese aggression in check in the Pacific.

Dangerous enemies fighting us on two sides threatened our national existence. Close liaison was needed with our allies.

As H. G. Kaltenborn pointed out Sunday, it was quite in order to aid our allies. There was nothing wrong then that the staid Republican New York Herald-Tribune had Joseph Barnes, a well-known Communist sympathizer as its foreign editor, nor that Edgar Snow, whose books praised Communism in the Far East, was an editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Even General Eisenhower maintained his close friendship with Russian General Zhukov after the close of the war.

It was against a background like this that Harry Dexter White, a government employee since 1934, was transferred from assistant secretary of the treasury under Kentucky's own Fred M. Vinson, then Secretary of the Treasury, to become a director of the International Monetary Fund being set up to aid in stabilizing the currencies and economies of countries in a war-ravaged world.

White, an expert in the treasury for several years, had been proposed as a director of the fund for some months, and his appointment by Truman to the position was ratified by the Senate Feb. 6, 1946.

The second FBI memorandum on White's questioned loyalty reached the White House Feb. 4. Truman, after studying it, sent it to Vinson, White's superior, asking him to study it and confer the next day with Attorney General Clark on the advisability of the appointment. Vinson, Clark and FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, according to Hoover's testimony, accordingly conferred the next day and decided on three possible courses of action to suggest to the President. Truman decided on the third alternative—to let the appointment go through, but to keep White under surveillance.

Truman in his broadcast to the nation Monday night said this decision was made because the FBI at that time was engaged in carrying out his Security Policy by making a wide check on government employees suspected of foreign connections and that to recall the appointment would have tipped the hand of the FBI. "This course was the only one," Truman declared, "that would have protected the national interest and at the same time permitted the intensive FBI investigation then in progress to go forward. No other course could have served these two purposes," he said.

And Truman noted too that instead of making White director of the fund, he was made a member of the board, a position less sensitive than director.

Attorney General Brownell in a speech to the Executives' Club in Chicago Nov. 6 reopened the case by declaring "Harry Dexter White was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him."

But after President Eisenhower five days later disassociated himself from the case and declared he did not believe Truman knowingly would have appointed a spy, Brownell next day said he did not mean to impugn Mr. Truman's loyalty but only that he meant the administration had been "lax" or "blind" in handling loyalty cases.

If "laxity" or "blindness" is to be the charge instead of disloyalty, it must be noted that in the period from December 1945 when the first FBI report on White was made, until April 1946, when White resigned, Truman and his cabinet were engaged in making a fundamental change in our foreign policy to counteract Russia's beginning of aggression.

Truman and his cabinet were giving intense study to this change. Early in March, after a week-long secret meeting of high government officials, a policy decision was taken to oppose the Soviet's demands on Turkey. It was decided here in a meeting attended not only by President Truman but by General Eisenhower, who was Chief of Staff, to oppose any Russian efforts to take over the Eastern Mediterranean, and to use force if necessary.

Truman already had issued his Security Policy regarding government employees, and, now engaged in the far more important study to change our foreign policy, it is readily seen why he wanted the FBI investigations to go on uninterrupted.

Truman's own record of organizing this nation against Communist aggression, even to the extent of using force if necessary, adequately answers any charges that he may have been disloyal to his country or favorable to Communism. In the months that Brownell charges some Red-fringe government employees may have been influenced high government policy in favor of Russia, the records show otherwise.

During the years of their alleged power, the Truman Administration took the following post-war steps to curb Communist aggression—

1. Forced Russia to evacuate Iran in 1946.
2. Sent the fleet into the Mediterranean and declared the Truman Doctrine to protect Greece and Turkey from Russia, 1947.
3. Organized the Marshall Plan to save Western Europe from Communist domination, 1948.
4. Broke the Berlin blockade, 1949.
5. Joined the United Nations armies in a war to stop Communist aggression in Korea, 1950.
6. Organized the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to forestall further Communist aggression in Europe.
7. Sent Military aid to Indo-China to fight Communism.
8. Backed the Schuman Plan to strengthen Germany's stand against Communism.
9. Organized and supported the European Army Plan and sent General Eisenhower and divisions of our army to Europe to start the nucleus of an anti-Communist army in Europe.

And on the home front, the Truman government also brought the top officials of the Communist party before federal juries, prosecuted and convicted them.

If there are Communists in government positions, surely they should be ferreted out, indicted and prosecuted. But we fail to understand how raking out the cold embers of an eight-year-old case that already has been investigated by a federal grand jury that took no action can aid in protecting us against Reds in government now.

Is the whole aim of the administration in reviving the charge of "spy" against a man dead five years a smoke screen to distract our attention from the inadequate handling of present serious problems facing our nation?

We think people here in Morgan county are more concerned with present Red ink of farmers than with dead Red survivors.

PEOPLE LIKE TO MEET IN WEST LIBERTY

West Liberty more and more is becoming the meeting place for regional conferences in Eastern Kentucky. Located as it is almost in the mid-section of Eastern Kentucky and easily accessible by good highways from all directions, West Liberty is geographically an ideal district center. But, in addition West Liberty has the finest restaurants to be found anywhere, a good hotel and motel, and in addition, its people are friendly, neighborly and delighted to have visitors meet in our midst.

In recent weeks four major district groups have met here. We refer to the Sixth District DAR Conference, the Eastern Kentucky Writers Conference, the 13th and 14th district meeting of Christian church pastors, and the meeting last week of the directors of 26 FFA clubs from 16 counties.

This quality of genuine friendliness of Morgan people is one that strikes visitors as unique nowadays, one that frequently evokes comment from visitors. It is one that Morgan should maintain despite good roads, automobiles and airplanes. Let us keep this good old time neighborliness and show our friendliness to all who come within our midst.

PLANNING AN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The election Tuesday, November 3, was a mandate to the leadership of Kentucky to formulate and carry out a program of education in Kentucky that will place her schools on a par with those of other states of this nation.

A promise was made by the leaders of both parties and by the men and women who sponsored the campaign to change Section 186 of the State Constitution so that our children will have something better in all Kentucky and especially in the less favored areas where there are large numbers of school children and less wealth to tax.

From here out it is very definitely up to those who plan the program and the Legislature and Governor to see that such a program is inaugurated. This should be done by the 1954 General Assembly. There is no reason to wait one year, or two years.

More than five thousand people have sat in conference in small groups and studied and answered questions as to what they want and think they should have in a program of education. The Legislative Research Committee under the able leadership of Dr. A. Y. Lloyd has worked intensively for many months on the Minimum Foundation Program, and no doubt the committee is ready to present it to the Legislature.

The people are looking forward to action, not talk.

A smile can sometimes be expensive.

We got caught in a crowd of two the other day.

Clothes don't make the man. They make the impression.

We are inclined to think love at first sight is infatuation at first sight.

Never pay any attention to the person who knows what he says is right.

When the dollar becomes involved, other considerations usually take a back seat.

In an atomic war the citizen in the small town, or in the country, may have something on his city brethren—his life.

PANMUNION EXPLANATION

TENT: "A Chinese explainer began to speak. . . the prisoner shouted the same thing over and over again. The explainer stood up, raising his voice. From the prisoner's time I could catch the word 'Taiwan'—Formosa—again and again. The prisoner began to sweat. The Chinese explainer looked embarrassed. . . It didn't last long. . . He (the Indian Chairman) carefully pointed to one door for repatriation and to another for nonrepatriation. The prisoner looked bewildered and asked which was for Taiwan. The everyone left, and the youth stood alone in the middle of the tent while officers and reporters peered at him from the doorways. He turned and glanced through the door that meant nonrepatriation."

DEMOCRATIC OPPOSITION

Realist: Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) says, "Not opposition for the sake of opposition but a consistent effort to hold the majority party accountable for its policies has been the role of the Democratic Party at its best this past year. . . During its heyday from power the Democratic Party has been accorded no holiday from responsibility. Our very closeness to power imposes unity on the major issues of the times—on peace or war, on survival. We cannot abdicate this great responsibility. The internal differences that beset our party while in office appear in retrospect as minor compared to the clash nonrepatriation through the Republican Party. Even in defeat the Democratic Party has demonstrated its maturity."

JAPANESE LABOR UNIONISM

"Because form is so important, strikes (in Japan) have been called off when one or both sides have become convinced of the need to save face. An employer may bargain with his workers on valid differences, but the moment the discussion gets aired in the local newspaper he is so embarrassed by the idea that his neighbors will think him insensitive to his obligations that he may hurriedly give in. The same can be true of his workers, if they decide that they are being ungrateful and insubordinate."

Excerpts from THE REPORTER MAGAZINE, 220 East 42nd St., New York.

NOTES ON HUNTING

Since 25 days of the squirrel season was lost due to the drought and forest fire dangers, those 25 days will be given back to hunters starting with the opening of the rabbit and quail season Friday and extending through Dec. 15.

Bag limit for rabbits is eight per day and a possession limit of 16, and the quail daily limit is 16 and possession limit is 20.

The ruffed grouse season commences at the same time the quail and rabbit season starts Friday and continues for the same period to Dec. 15. Bag limit is two.

Governor Wetherby may be in Morgan county to quail hunt the first of next week. He plans to hunt with Dr. Johnson of Belfry, Pike county Monday, and they may come to Morgan on Tuesday if quail are too difficult to find in Pike.

There are more quail than in a long time—and more native grouse, too, local conservation officers report. Squirrel also are plentiful, hunters report. Rabbits, however, are not so plentiful as in less wooded counties.

Ezel Dealer Previews New 1954 Chevrolet Trucks in Cincinnati

Rollie Wilson of the W.W.W. Chevrolet Sales Ezel, has just returned from Cincinnati where he attended a private preview of the new 1954 Chevrolet trucks. The exhibit and accompanying business session were sponsored by the company for all retail dealers and salesmen in this area and emphasized the importance Chevrolet is attaching to its soon-to-be-announced new truck line.

"The meeting was somewhat of a precedent in our experience because it was devoted exclusively to new truck models," said Mr. Wilson. "The reason soon became clear. The 1954 line contains so many new features that even a review of highspots required considerable time."

"Not only will Chevrolet have more to offer the truck user in 1954, but it will expand the forces behind its selling. Included is an expanded advertising program."

Mr. Wilson said he plans to arrange a special showing of the new line in his dealership when the trucks become available for display later this month. It is one of the few times in history that Chevrolet has exhibited new trucks apart from new passenger car models.

Lewis attended church at Elkfork Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Hutchinson and son of Crockett were the Friday overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Adkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Phillips and baby of Ashland spent the week end visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peters and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Phillips.

Elmer Whitley and family of Fannin visited Mrs. Effie Whitley here Sunday.

The F-100's maximum speed still is a secret, but its test flight indicates a top speed approaching 800 m.p.h. according to Newsweek. It is 45 feet long, 14 feet high and has a wing span of 36 feet. It can operate easily at an altitude of 50,000 feet. That's nearly nine miles up. Planes hit the sonic barrier at 680 miles per hour.)

"CHOCK FULL" OF NEWS

The Courier—Both Ethel Mae and I really enjoy the paper a lot and have commented on the improvement you have made in it during the last few years. It is, we think, full of more human interest stories than any weekly we know of. It is "chock full" of readable material, and when it arrives, both read it in preference to the daily paper.

Our plans and future address are a bit uncertain. I sold out my entire interest in the real estate and dealership at Louisa to my brother and for the present we are living in Ashland with my wife's father. We plan to either locate in Ashland or Lexington.

The Courier—

I am enclosing $3.00 to pay for subscription to the Licking Valley Courier for one year.

I have planned to subscribe for about four years now but with so many things to do I have just failed to get the check written, but now that I'm sending a news item, it becomes more convenient to send the check along too.

I do enjoy reading the paper, however, when I visit my mother or my mother-in-law who live in Morgan county. We away from home need the tie with home folks which your paper provides.

We have a nice home about five miles north of Pikeville on the North Mayo Trail. My husband, Arnold Mann, is assistant manager of A & P Super Market in Pikeville.

Thought I would take time out to write a few lines to let you know how things are here in Germany where I am now stationed. I am with the 53rd Army Postal Unit located in Bad Nauheim, Germany. It is the famous health resort where former President F. D. Roosevelt used to come for health baths when he was in Germany. It is also the place where Hitler used to vacation—a very beautiful city and also small, not much larger than West Liberty, with a population somewhere around 2,000. Tell everyone hello for me.

The Courier—

Enclosed is my check for $3.00 to renew my subscription for another year, for I do not want to miss one copy of my good old home paper. It means more to me than all other papers.

I was so anxious to get my last copy and to hear how the election went.

Well, I have bought a place in Wilkerson, Ind. which is about 18 miles from Anderson, Ind. We all just love it more and more each day. It sure is one swell little town. Everybody is so nice and "kind" to each other makes me think about good old Morgan county. Say, Mr. Whitt, when you take your vacation would love for you to come out and spend a few days with us. Give my best regards to everyone. May you and your staff have a prosperous new year for 1954.

Quail Reported To Be Plentiful In Elliott Co.

Reports from various parts of Elliott county indicate that more quail and rabbits are to be found in Elliott than usual.

Tom Salyer, tax commissioner, said he had seen several coveys but when questioned by Estill Hutchinson, he evaded direct answers. Estill, however, made a note of the place where he had seen them.

Bob Miller and Ray Lewis said they had also seen several coveys. Since the smaller streams are all dry, it appears that the birds are seeking water down on the creeks and larger streams and in the lowlands.

OBITUARY

PATRICK

Russell Patrick, son of Willie Patrick and Mildred Davis Patrick, was born in Morgan County, Ky., January 10, 1918, and died October 23, 1933 at Lima, Ohio at the age of 35 years, 9 months and 13 days. On March 30, 1939, he was united in marriage to Laurene Haney, daughter of Goebel Haney and Rachel Nickell Haney. To this union were born four children, one son Jimmie Ray, and daughters Ann Carolyn, Patricia Lee, Barbara Jean. He is survived by his widow, and four children.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Maggie Salyers of Burg; one brother, Frank Patrick of Lima, O.; four half-brothers, Vergil and Marinar Patrick of Lima, Ohio, and Marinar and Nathan Crase of Morgan county. He left behind a host of relatives and friends who will miss him for a long time to come. He was loved by many and made friends everywhere he went. We know that God has promised us that some sweet day if we will only trust and obey Him, we shall all meet again. If it was not for that promise, we would not have any reason to go on living. My husband was just laughing and talking and God came and took him away without a chance to speak one word. May this be a warning to each and everyone that reads this obituary that God can come quickly and if we are not ready to meet Him, our live on earth is all lived in vain. So, dear friend, each and everyone be ready to meet your God.—MRS. RUSSELL PATRICK

CARD OF THANKS

Through the columns of the Licking Valley Courier we wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy during the death and burial of our darling son, husband and father, Bernard Lacy.

Our hearts are broken with grief, our home is so lonely in this hour of grief. It seems that all the sunshine of our lives has died. We find it impossible to sufficiently express our thanks to every one who helped and especially the pallbearers, Bro. Duncan for the wonderful words of comfort, the Porter Funeral Home for the wonderful service, those who helped in the song service.—The family: his mother, wife and three children, Alice Sue, Larry Joe and Joyce Ann, and sister, Mrs. James Reed.

Day-Abbaugh Vows Said in California

Mrs. Walter G. Abbaugh, Jr.

Miss Neva Jo Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Day of Los Angeles, Calif., and natives of this county, was married recently to Walter Gayle Abbaugh, Jr. in California. The bride is a granddaughter of L. D. Hamilton of Malone and the late Jesse Day of Elkfork. The following account of the marriage is from the Glendale, Calif., News-Press:

Pasadena Chapel of Roses was the setting for the recent double ring ceremony, uniting Miss Neva Jo Day and Walter Gayle Abbaugh, Jr. in marriage. The Rev. Daniel Falcon officiated at the candlelight rites, and the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Day of Los Angeles, chose traditional white satin for her wedding gown. A pearl crown with short veil completed her costume. She carried white roses surrounding white orchids.

Miss Arlene Farrell, maid of honor, wore a waltz length burgundy gown and carried blue carnations. Bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Hamilton and Miss Joyce Rylander, were gowned alike in blue waltz length gowns and their flowers were yellow carnations.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Walter Gayle Abbaugh, 3448 Downing, Glendale, Calif., and Mr. Abbaugh, who came from his home in Cleveland, O., for the ceremony. He was attended by Richard Abbaugh, his brother, as best man. Ushers were Lee Luger and William Perenti, Steven Day, 12-year-old brother of the bride, escorted the two mothers to their places in the chapel. Diane McBain, the bridegroom's young cousin, was at the guest book.

A reception followed the ceremony at the chapel. Mrs. Day received in gold taffeta and Mrs. Abbaugh wore pink taffeta.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Crestline.

The bride is an alumna of the Franklin High school in Los Angeles, where she was Girl- League president and a member of Girls' Council.

Her bridegroom studied at the Glendale High school and served four years in the Navy. They are at home at 427-A East Elk, Glendale, Calif.

4,278 ACRES OF PASTURE SEEDED IN ACP PROGRAM

76% of Elliott's Acreage Included In 1952 Practices

A total of 4,278 acres of new pastures were seeded on 547 farms in Elliott county under the 1952 Soil Conservation Program, according to the State PMA Committee's report in its 1952 year-book.

A total of 992 farmers participated in the 1952 program covering 98,600 acres or 75% of the county's acreage, the report shows.

Value of all ACP practices performed in the county total $44,824 of which the government helped finance $39,954 of the amount in materials and services furnished. Conservation material furnished was valued at $14,448. Of these there were 1,692 tons of limestone used on 89 farms; 527 tons of phosphate used on 710 farms; 2,520,000 pounds of potash used on 450 farms.

Crimson clover and vetch were sowed on 1,613 acres on 733 farms, and small grain cover crops were sowed on 377 acres on 114 farms. Stockpiles were built on 14 farms, 1200 rods of drainage tile was laid on 24 farms, and five forestry practices were carried out.

In addition the county PMA office supervised the tobacco allotment, and marketed a program for 14,711 acres of burley harvested in the county that produced 2,339,000 pounds.

The increase of potash used in addition to limestone and phosphate in connection with the seeding of new pastures and the fertilization of old pastures is due in part to soil tests that showed the need of this mineral.

Forest Fires Burn Over Large Area In Elliott

Forest fires have burned over a number of farms in Elliott on the Little Fork and Blaine Trace creeks. Some 700 or more acres have burned over on Blaine Trace, but Forest Warden Rex McDowell and fire fighters succeeded in bringing it under control last week.

It is very difficult to stop fires after they get started because of the dryness of the leaves and brush, and in many cases where the dead leaves are hanging on the trees the fire will burn to the tops of the trees and can be spread a great distance by the wind.

Much destruction results from the burning of the young growth of timber.

WE WILL COME TO YOU

In loving memory of our son, Bobby Cox, who was called to rest November 7, 1952. Years and years of joy, Bobby. Had blessed us day by day, But this year has been bleak and sad.

Since God called you away, Tonight we live those years again, In fancy try to see The days when as a boy You sat upon our knee.

We listen for your prattle, When as a little boy, You played and romped around us; Those days were days of joy!

Now we are still in sorrow, We lift our voice and pray That God will give us strength to live Without you day by day.

For in our hearts we realize Our loss is Heaven's gain; And free from all life's pain, One little thought brings hope to us,

It brings us courage, too— 'Tis though you cannot come to us, Some day we'll come to you.

We'll find joy in living for The ones you left behind, This will lighten all our sorrows And bring us peace of mind.

We'll try to rear your little flock, To man and womanhood; We'll try to give them every chance.

To be noble, strong and good, We'll try to find contentment, We know you want us to; But when our earthly tasks are done,

We're coming home to you! —Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cox Malone, Kentucky

Christmas Seal Campaign Helps Fight Against T.B.

Most Morgan countians will get a special letter in their mail this week. It will contain their 1953 Christmas Seal.

The local Christmas Seal Sale which begins Monday, Nov. 16, and continues through December, is part of a nationwide fund raising drive to help prevent tuberculosis. The funds are used locally for education, case-finding and rehabilitation.

"The state of Kentucky has the third highest death rate from the disease in the nation," according to E. R. Gernert, M.D., president of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.

"The Christmas Seal Sale is conducted entirely by mail so that persons may decide how much they can give without outside pressure," Dr. Gernert said.

Kentucky Women's Club Wins National Award

HONORABLE MENTION among clubs in the 1953 Carol Lane Awards was won by the Buechel, Kentucky, Women's Club. Mrs. Carl E. Brewer, who represented her organization, is shown at right receiving a handsome bronze plaque from Miss Carol Lane, originator of the Awards.

For a program to solve traffic safety problems arising from the fact that the main street of their town was also an arterial highway, the Buechel Women's Club of Buechel, Kentucky, won Honorable Mention in the national-wide Carol Lane Safety Award competition. The award, which was presented at the National Safety Congress in Chicago, was accepted by the club safety chairman, Mrs. Carl E. Brewer. It consists of a specially designed bronze plaque whose bas-relief sculpture represents "woman's protective instinct."

The Buechel Club was chosen from contestants from all parts of the United States by a board of judges consisting of prominent leaders in safety, education and women's activities. The awards are sponsored by Carol Lane, women's travel director of Shell Oil Company, and are administered by the National Safety Council under a grant from the Shell company.

The Buechel club was cited for "proving that women in small communities can promote traffic safety as effectively as those in a large metropolitan area." An alarming increase in vehicular traffic in their town caused the club to launch a program to remedy the resulting problems. They succeeded in getting new traffic signs, road markers and yellow no-passing signs installed.

MOVE TO WINCHESTER

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. Oney have sold their property in West Liberty to the R.E.A. and moved recently to Winchester where they bought a 12-room duplex of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lykins of Winchester. The house is located at the corner of Bloomfield and Lexington Roads. Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Timmons occupy the second floor apartment. Mrs. Timmons is the former Viva Bowles. The Oneys were highly regarded citizens of Morgan county and it is with regret that their friends see them leave. They report they like their new location fine. They bought a lot in the Winchester cemetery and on October 20 had the body of their daughter, Mrs. K. J. Bowles moved from the Salver cemetery in West Liberty to the Winchester cemetery.

farm facts FOR KENTUCKY FOLKS

by Wm. C. Johnstone
AGRICULTURAL REPRESENTATIVE
KENTUCKY BANKERS ASSOCIATION

It does little good to recount our adversities and I am sure that we have already heard too much about the dry weather. But the effects of the drought is the most important problem facing Kentucky farmers today and I fear we will hear much of it for a long time in the future. Pastures are non-existent—the poorest I remember in the past; fifty years and, worst of all, much of the perennial grasses and legumes are apparently dead. Most small grains are not up yet and it will require an unusually favorable winter to save many acres of oats and barley which seeded at great expense and which should normally be covering the ground by November.

Winter feeding started two months earlier than usual and will continue late in the spring. And so the story goes. The question now is "What can we do to lessen the effects on next year's income?"

The most immediate problems for 1954 as I see them are: maintaining breeding herds, re-establishing pastures, financing, and reducing production costs. I will try to discuss these during the coming months. Right now there are two immediate steps to take: first, cull the poor producers from the herd, second, continue to sow wheat and rye even until early December. One can not afford to carry poor producers over a long winter on high priced feed and wheat and rye are good "bets" when seeded rather late.

I predict that pastures will come out next spring better than most of us expect. Nitrogen supplies in the soil build up fast during dry seasons and drought years are usually followed by good crop years. Much grass thought to be dead will recover, and nature has a lot of grass and clover seed stored in the soil ready to come back next spring.

Fortunately, too, there is a good supply of many pasture seeds. The government has over 12 million pounds of 1952 fescue seed crop in storage and little of the 29 million pounds harvested in 1953 has been used. Although the seed is abundant the demand will be great because fescue has proven the most drought resistant of all Kentucky grasses. Red and alsike clover and alfalfa are also abundant and will be relatively cheap. Lespedeza will be very short.

Fertilizers, too, will be abundant and priced, in comparison with other things, will be relatively cheap. In 1954 farmers who wish to save money and produce cheaply will continue to use fertilizer liberally but only in accordance with the results of soil tests, made on every cultivated acre.

In spite of the drought there is much good corn in the state this year. It is remarkable how little water a crop can use if it comes at the right time and if there is plenty of fertility in the soil. In the 1930 drought Kentucky's average corn yield was 10 bushels per acre. This year the latest estimate indicates near 35 bushels. Low prices of alfalfa seed will result in the seeding of a larger than usual acreage next spring. Extension men from the U. of K. find that many Kentucky alfalfa fields are low in borax. They recommend 20 to 30 pounds per acre. Heavy applications of Potash and Phosphate are also usually needed for good crops of alfalfa.

FREE SCHOOL LUNCHES

Mrs. Nellie Pelfrey, teacher of Smith Creek school serves lunch to all the children free. Her home is near the school and she prepares them in her kitchen and brings them to school. This is a rural school, Tuesday, she had almost perfect attendance of the 33 enrolled. She has all grades except 5th and 7th. Darlene Holbrook and Joyce Ann Smith have perfect attendance and Betty and Carolyn Holbrook have missed only one day.

Water Situation Calls For Plans For Next Season

For many farmers the critical point in getting livestock through the winter may not be feed so much as water, unless abundant rains come, says a statement of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service.

On most farms little or nothing can now be done to help the immediate water supply situation, except perhaps drilling new wells in areas where such drilling would seem to offer chances of success, it is noted.

"Now may be a good time, however, to make plans for new farm ponds, well located and adequate in size and structure to supply plenty of water even during extended drought," it is suggested. "In areas where little difficulty is experienced in constructing ponds which will hold water, farmers will want to consider the possibilities of constructing ponds adequate not only for livestock water but for irrigation of certain critical acreages. No farmer now suffering from drought needs to be told what it would mean to him in another such emergency to have a pond adequate for irrigation of 10, 20 or more acres of emergency pasture or other crop land."

Both for longer life of the pond and cooler, cleaner water, the pond should be fenced off from livestock and the water piped by gravity to troughs below the dam.

For livestock water another possibility is the construction of large half-submerged cisterns at the tobacco barn. Costs of such structures are not excessive.

Plans may be obtained from county agents or from the Agricultural Engineering Section, the University of Kentucky.

US Air Force Needs Aircraft Observers

Announcement was made this week by the U. S. Army and U.S. Air Force Recruiting Service that the U. S. Air Force is in need of qualified young men for aircraft observers.

The announcement stated that all young men between the ages of 19-26, single and who are high school graduates, may apply and if found qualified (they will be enlisted in the Air Force for two years. After their enlistment, they will receive special training in pre-flight, multiplace bombardment, interceptor and transport type aircraft. Subjects include electronics and radar, airmanship, mathematics, aerial navigation, theory of bombing and gunnery, aircraft and related subjects. The entire course for an AOT will take approximately 14 months with classes starting every two weeks. Young men with prior service that can qualify are urged to contact the local recruiting sergeant for full information, at the Recruiting Station, Postoffice Building, Paintsville.

Forest Fires Make Drouth Worse, Says The County Agent

Nearly everyone would agree that forest fire hazards are made worse by the drought. It is just as true that the drought is made worse by the forest fires, according to County Agent Charlie Dixon.

He pointed out that a heavy coat of leaves on the ground is the best known protection to absorb rainfall or snow and prevent its run-off. The heavy coat of leaves allows the moisture to soak into the earth and gradually supply water to wells, springs and streams throughout the entire year. But when fires burn off the leaves and grass, the soil is left bare. Rains quickly beat the surface off. Rain water falling upon the unprotected soil quickly runs off carrying the fertile top soil with it. This is a major cause of floods at the time. Since the water runs off instead of soaking into the soil, a few weeks without rain exhaust the soil moisture and dry up streams, wells and springs.

Morgan county has had at least six big forest fires already this year. There were located just below West Liberty, on Stacy Fork, in the Malone-Jones Creek area, above Lenox, above Dingus on Coffey Creek and on the head of Smith Creek.

The County Agent thinks that farmers in the area of a fire should go immediately to help bring it under control. The fire warden does not have enough men to fight a large number of fires or a big fire. Their funds for paying fire fighters are exhausted. Let us do everything possible to prevent fires and to bring those that do occur under control as soon as possible. Do your part.

Ashland Man Manages New Postoffice District

Don Brewer of Ashland, postal inspector in this area the past few years, was appointed last week as acting district manager of the new Lexington district in the Postoffice Department's new decentralization project. The Lexington district includes 44 central and eastern Kentucky counties including Morgan and Elliott. Department policies will still be made in Washington but will be carried out on a regional basis, Brewer said.

U. S. CHANGES ITS ALLOTMENT ORDER

Senator Earle C. Clements and Congressman John C. Watts said this week that the Department of Agriculture in a meeting held with various tobacco groups on November 13 that it would not put into effect its previously announced requirement that farmers must be in compliance with all acreage allotments established for their farm in order to be eligible for price support on any basic commodity in the year 1954. The department officials further said that this action was based on several factors not fully considered by the Department before it made the original announcement several weeks ago. Several of these factors had been called to the department's attention by Senator Clements, Congressman Watts and the various tobacco groups.

The Department officials further stated that they would, at a later date, consider the proposal as it relates to the 1955 crops, but assured the groups that before it was put into effect for any year that all groups representing the different commodities to be affected would have the opportunity to examine and discuss the proposal before it was adopted.

In discussing this reversal of action by the Department, Senator Clements said, "When this requirement was so abruptly announced, I immediately made my objection known to the Secretary of Agriculture, namely, that although the tobacco growers were as a whole in favor of compliance and controls, they felt that this requirement was hastily devised, it contained many administrative difficulties making it impractical and unworkable, and further represented a moral breach of faith in that it was not an announced requirement at the time quotas were approved by the growers last year."

Sandy Hook Loses First Game In Seven Starts

The Sandy Hook Lions lost their first game of the season Tuesday night as the Comets of Olive Hill high school came from behind in the final period to win their third game of the season 30-46.

This was the first meeting of the two teams in twelve years and turned out to be a thriller as neither team ever had more than a four-point lead during the game. Jess Adkins dropped in 19 points to lead both teams in scoring, while Stone was best for Olive Hill with 14.

Capt. Ike Oliver continued to control the boards by holding the big Olive Hill center to 8 points. Sandy Hook won their sixth game in seven starts Friday night by defeating Ezel 54-38. The Lions jumped to a 17-7 lead in the first period and led 24-11 at the half.

Sandy Hook will go to Van Lear Tuesday, Nov. 17 and play Booker T. Washington at Sandy Hook on Nov. 20.

FARM BUREAU

circulated in one Kentucky county asking that Kline not be re-elected at the A.F.B.F. convention at Chicago December 14 to 16.

Opposition to the flexible price support program had been expressed at numerous meetings organized by the Kentucky Farm Bureau throughout the state to develop farm policies.

Both Kline and his assistant director, Kenneth Hood, spoke to the Kentucky farm group and called for flexible price supports as the best Government program "in the long run." Other systems, Hood said, force large surpluses on the government. Kline called for more efficient production by farmers to help solve farm problems and said the creation of new markets is the answer to long-range farm prosperity.

Governor Wetherby and Senator Cooper also addressed the meeting. Burl St. Clair of Falls of Rough was re-elected president of the State Bureau without opposition. The bureau added another director in the person of Ollie J. Arnett of Salyersville to represent the Seventh district.

Students and Parents Proud of New School Building at Straight Creek

IN THE BACK of the room is the teacher, Miss Faye Cox of Malone. There are 45 children in the school. Photo was made the first week of the school after the completion of the new building.

A new school building has recently been constructed at the Strait Creek school to replace one that was washed away 15 years ago, and the students and parents of that community are very proud of it.

This is one of the largest one room schools in the county, located at the Forks of Straight Creek which flows into Elk Fork four miles from West Liberty. There are two main streams of the creek, one heads toward Redwine and the other toward Laurel Fork and Elliott county. Several years ago during World War I a railroad came from Redwine across the hills and down the creek to Lenox and hundreds of thousands of board feet of lumber was cut and sawed at Lenox and shipped to Morehead and East from this area.

Most of the area of several thousand acres of land has now grown up and is in forest. Many of the families who live on the creek are descendants of the first settlers. Marion Trimble is perhaps the oldest and has lived here all his life. Vergil Lewis, the Forest Warden, lives close to the new school. Pete Keeton who has a general merchandise store at the Forks of the creek has been here for 7 years. Pete says they are having a good school and that he was auctioneer for a pie supper a few nights ago and the pies sold for $64.90 to make money for the school.

While visiting at the store Monday Pete said he had four grandchildren attending school at West Liberty. They are Dorothy, Dale, Anna and Flora Ball. Tommy Ferguson came to the store. He lives at the head of Straight Creek and has five children who attend regularly. They are Opal, Ray, Ollie, Rosa Lee and Billy. Mr. Ferguson said they have a good school. Mrs. Orville Moore of Ashland and Miss Lyda Moore were trading at the store.

There were 45 children in school when visited by the supervisor

Monday. All the children of Elbert Howell who lives on the head of the creek next to Redwine were in school. They are Clyde, Betty, Ronald and Corinne. These two families live the farthest and attend regularly. One of the closest families is Ross O'Neal and when W. G. Ratliff, chairman of the Board of Education, visited the school recently to look at the new building and see the children, he picked up one of the smallest boys.

Mr. Ratliff holds Arnell O'Neal, the six-year-old son of Ross O'Neal. The boy enjoyed talking to Mr. Ratliff and did not appear to be the least afraid. Mr. Ratliff taught school many, many years ago. Mr. O'Neal has four other children in school. They are Arlen, Noie, Magdalene and Elton. There are five pupils who are fifteen years old. The school building washed away in 1939 and the district has not had a building since until this year when the Board built a new building just above the road from where the old building stood.

Part time the school was taught in the church building and much of the time no teacher was available.

The people are very much interested and enthused about their school. The children study better, look better and are happy because they have a new building. The room is nice, clean, well equipped and the teacher and children are working hard.

The new school building which was completed only about six weeks ago replaces the one which was washed away fifteen years ago. The parents and children are proud of it. They plan to give a radio program and have a field day with the Lenox school.

FLORRESS

(By Nora Easterling) Dull November is here at last. With proof that summer is past, Jack Frost came through, and in his path.

It looks we've had a winter blast.

The flowers are gone, the trees Our cover crops are all that's found.

That's green, and tender standing there;

But in our hearts we breathe a prayer

Of thankfulness, for food in store,

And health. Why should we wish for more?

Thanksgiving day will soon be here.

We'll thank God for a bounty year.

Farmers in our community are grading tobacco, every time we get a season. Some have a good start on their crops, and some have just begun. One farmer, Victor Conley, has used the sprinkling method. He says it doesn't damage the tobacco and it looks all right after pressing.

Good corn in Davless county has created interest in increased hog production.

Jesse Daniel of Ohio county produced 132½ bushels of corn on an acre.

ALL TRUCKS SERVE THE FARMER!

TRUCKS like this take Farm Products To Market

TRUCKS like this Deliver what Farm Families Need For Happy Healthy Living

Penalize Either of These Trucks and You Penalize Farm Families

• The trucks that carry crops to market are not the only trucks that serve the farmer. For in addition to these, there is a far reaching network of trucks... big ones and little ones... that move produce to the far corners of America and bring in return, the countless industrial products needed for modern farm living and operation.

Big Trucks contact big markets to assure the sale of crops at a price that is profitable to you, and, the bigger the demand, the better price you get. Thus, big trucks make NEW markets... while expanding established markets for you. Big trucks are as important to your prosperity as your own farm delivery truck... and that's why any attempt to penalize the trucking industry is an attack on your family's welfare.

Don't let ANYONE tamper with ANY LINK in our nation's long chain of trucks that roll to and from the markets.

DR. ADOLPHUS GILLIAM

OUR BIGGEST EARTHLY PROBLEM

This is of course a mooted question; it could be discussed on the basis of having two sides to it. When I mentioned this subject to one of my friends recently he told me that he wished I would tell him what the answer is. I said, "What do you think?" I am asking you the same question, "What do you think?"

What do you think is our greatest earthly problem?" Paul in his writing in the twelfth chapter of Romans is doing his best to answer this very problem, to help with it, and that is how to get along today. If you know of any greater problem that you and the world and all the races of the earth have then the one of getting along I would like to know about it. "If it be possible, as much as you can, live peaceably with all men." Paul is just inferring, without any question, that you are going to meet folk with whom you cannot get along. I suppose that is true everywhere you go and in every walk of life. There are some people that could not get along with angels. They would not get along with Christ and I really do not know what the devil wants with them but he seems to be always wanting them. I have wondered in my life when I have seen some folk who seemed to be dominated by Satan what on earth he wanted with them, and if he gets them I do not know what he will do with them. What can he possibly do with Hitler or Mussolini and a lot of others that you might name even down to our community situations.

When God made man He made him in His own image. When he could not get along in the Garden of Eden where everything was perfect and he had no troubles at all then the one thing told him he should not do he could not keep from doing that. After he had left this Garden and came on his own it was not any time until this problem of getting along together became very acute. So, the family had a falling out; they had a family row, a very serious one, in which one brother slew the other. It is doubtful if you will find many homes that are peaceful within. There are times when dissensions just tear it to pieces, and break its peace, and handicap its progress, and certainly delay its success and stamper it many times when it ought to be calm and easy.

Then we come to the problem of getting along together in business. How much dissension we do find among people who are trying to live together to make a living. There are those who just seem to cannot get along. They get in our schools, on our faculties, and even in church programs. Now if it runs like that, coming all the way down to our supposedly holiest institutions, what on earth is it going to do with the problem as it faces the whole world. This is the reason we have our wars and will continue to have them; people fall out and fight and destroy each other because they cannot get along together. It is even greater now than it was during the war. I am not a pessimist but I will say to you frankly that we are going to have to get along together in the not too distant future or we will not be here to get along at all. There is not a question to that truth. It becomes more and more the greatest problem on earth learning to live together in peace.

Let us go to some of the practical and simple things of the world. What are we going to do when you and I as leaders and people and powers and friends are continually confronting those who seem to be good at destroying peace? They are constituted like that; often we find that they are disappointed personalities, disrupted in their youth, and they have some vacancies and some vacuums in their lives; some complexes that get satisfaction out of being anti. Often the thing that you think is a burden on the part of a person is nothing in the world but making up for something they feel they lack and they give a good deal of feeling there; they hurt people's feelings; they like to do it; they get something out of it. They almost come to the point where they are sadistic in this.

I have had very few people who were openly hostile to me in my entire ministry. A leader in a church where I had been the pastor for six years, and one of the fine men of the community, said, "Before you go, Dr. Gilliam, I want to ask you - how did it happen that you have gone six years with our Board of Stewards and we have never had any serious dissension in a single board, when we have one or two men on that board who have been noted for that through all their lives?" He was just saying, "We have one or two members of our Board who have broken the peace there, not for progress, not for good, but for simple, plain personal ambitions and those are dangerous people." Spurgeon said at one time, speaking of some of his congregation, that he did not think they were sent into the world for him to save their souls but that they had been sent perhaps to discipline him. That is a good way to look at it sometimes instead of getting frustrated. Another great man said that when you had gotten the ape and the tiger out of man there is still the mule and it is a very stubborn animal. Sometimes you meet folk that you think part of that animal is still left in them. They are just stubborn and you cannot do anything with them.

Another thing that we need to remember in getting along with folk is that we never know about the other fellow. I would like to list three things that I think are important in this problem of getting along. Now I am talking about us—I am not trying to solve the world's problems because we are a part of the world and we have to worry about ourselves until finally we can do something about it. One thing is to know yourself and that is one of the most difficult things in the world to do. When you know yourself another thing that man ought to know in getting along with people is that he should be able to laugh at himself. That is not easy to do. The old colored fellow said if you would sit on the fence and watch yourself go by you would laugh yourself to death at the sight. He has a good old sound philosophy there. I wish frankly sometimes that I could, don't you—just sit on a fence and see myself go by; let me look as I look to other people. If I did that I think that I would get along better with other things and with myself and certainly with other people. I know a lot of folk who like to look at people. I am on a board where one of the members is a neurotic. It is a very interesting thing when I am in those meetings to watch this person when something does not go to suit him.

So, you must know yourself and use your best judgment and direct yourself in the way that you think is best and necessary. One of the greatest men in his field that I ever knew was Will Rogers—he was a man who could laugh at himself, more heartily than he could laugh at anything else in the whole world. And that is what made him a great man. Now let us look at something else that a man must have in order to get along and that is a vivid imagination. A lot of people have imagination but have you ever noticed how your imagination runs? If you are not careful it will take off on the wrong road and mercy how it travels! Many of our imaginations start out from the green-eyed monster and he is a good hand to start imaginations. Did you ever see him? Do you know what he can do? He can make an angel out of an ape and an ape out of an angel. He can take the sweetest person in the world, the most genuinely true person and make him the most unfaithful. You have to have an imagination out you must be careful what uses that imagination. Now if you have good, sound judgment, good reasoning, and a good sense of humor to use your imagination you could understand.

A sense of humor is one thing that you have to try to cultivate. I have known some people who never could have any sense of humor. I believe that any person who does not have that can never have more than two-thirds of a life. In order to make up a well-rounded life I think there must be a sense of humor big enough to take a good deal and to understand the idiosyncrasies of so many many people. There is another thing that will help us get along with people and that is generosity. There are not many generous people in the world, except to themselves. A lot of people are generous with anything they get for themselves. Somebody told me the other day about a certain individual and the thing that was being discussed was something he liked very much. This person said "It does not matter how much it costs; there will be no question. But for anything else, you had better be careful, he makes the eagle hard to catch." Well, he was saying just this—he is generous to himself. Anything that is for me or my family I can go the limit, but if it is beyond that my generosity stops. Now that is not generosity; that is plain unadulterated selfishness. But the generosity that goes beyond that enables you to understand the predicament of people. You understand that they have not all the things that you would expect them to have; you understand the conditions under which they were brought up. You can be generous with the things that they had no opportunity for, and if you cannot do that you cannot get along with all kinds of people.

A very generous young fellow said the other day, "I have learned over this period of years to get along with the poor and the rich and with the bad and with the good. But you know the first thing that I had to do was to be able to see people in their own background and it was a hard thing for me to do. But, Dr. Gilliam, I have been able to get a little good from everybody that I meet, the old and the young, the poor and the rich. Some of the richest experiences that I have had I received from some poor old uneducated man that we call an old ignorant colored man." I do not doubt it at all, and if that young man has all that he said he has then the world is going to have a hard time keeping him from living, because he is going to be able to get along with people and everywhere he goes he is going to find something that will be adding to him. Paul said, "I am a part of everybody I meet, I am indebted to everybody, to the bond and the free, to the Jew and the Greek; everybody I meet will give me something, and, consequently, I am in debt to him." You cannot do that unless you have a generous spirit and a generous mind.

We will not get along with each other by using force. Malenkov says he has the hydrogen bomb. I hope that it is not so. But if he does not have it he will get it. I hope that we do not have it but I think we do. But it is nothing to gloat over except the fact that we have our hands full of destruction. If we cannot get along with the rest of the world unless we use everything that we have for destruction then there is no hope. My sincere belief today is that it will not come by force. The only reason in the world that I do believe this is not because I have the greatest confidence in the leadership of the world but because I have the confidence in the leadership of Almighty God. In spite of all that we may do God will keep us from, in due time, destroying ourselves. And I think in time we will learn how to get along with other people.

The boys confirmed, when they got out of the Second World War, what we had heard and how their hearts were made sick because some of them had had to head out to sea and dump under the waves thousands and millions of tons of material wrought by the hands of American people, paid for by the taxpayers and taken out and wasted. The millions and millions of dollars that were burned up in oil, the crude oil, of the American nation that will be lost no matter what you do; the billions of dollars that were spent gone up in smoke. Now if we could spend half that amount trying to lift the status of humanity—the fallen, the poor, the slums—and build better places in which to live, look what a quarter of a century could do for the world.

Friends, you can get along with people. You will not be able to please everybody—do not think that you will. But learn to get along and you have an abundant life all around you.

YOCUM MAN BREAKS HIP

YOCUM, Ky.—(By Cassie Lewis)—Vade Quicksall of Yocum had the misfortune to break his hip in a fall Nov. 10. He is now in St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington, and is improving slowly. Thanks to Alma Robison Higbee Higbee for her interesting comments on her return to Morgan—and Yocum. And I wish to add that the most striking words of interest to us here at Yocum were her last words: "The day must come if I live and God willing when I will find the road back once more to stay." Welcome home.

Paris Lewis, Mrs. Suda Lewis and Jenette Standifer motored to Lexington Airport last Tuesday with A-3c Betty Vergene Lewis who was leaving for Tacoma, Wash. The writer was sorry to hear of the death of Finis Lee Hamilton of Dayton, Ohio. He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Hamilton formerly of Yocum.

Home-made medicine cabinets and materials for the care of the sick were demonstrated at meetings of homemakers clubs in Mercer county.

Members of Maricn county homemakers clubs are concentrating on the lesson called "Guides to Make Work Easier."

Your need for brotherhood my friend,
Is just the same as mine has been,
Our needs are mutually the same
When meeting trials in life's great game
I may not need your help today,
But somewhere camped along my way,
I'll need a friend, a faithful friend,
Some one who'll have a hand to lend.
